4. Professional and Scientific Council Executive Committee Reports

President (Jamie Sass)

Good afternoon, everyone! As I mentioned in the July report, Patrick and I hit the ground running as Council’s leadership, and July was a busy, busy month for the Executive Committee and for Council in general as we have continued building on the work started last year and begun looking toward new ways to advocate on behalf of our constituents.

The Executive Committee met on July 25th for our annual retreat. It was a wonderful day for many reasons. First and foremost, I’m a relational, people-person. The Executive Committee retreats gives me an opportunity to get to know and understand how my Executive Committee thinks, work, and makes decisions. I left that day very encouraged, thinking “I have a great group of Councilors, and I have an excellent Executive Committee this year.” I deeply admire anyone who puts their emotional and mental strength into trying to make something they love better, and I think Council is great representation of that. Second, this retreat gives me some insight into how our committee chairs and officers are thinking strategically about their year and how they can guide, shape, and influence Council actions. It became clear to me throughout the day that everything the Executive Committee brings to the table—EVERYTHING—is framed in constituent feedback and concern—as it should be. Third, and finally, the Executive Committee retreat provided us the space and time to synthesize constituent feedback from our work session in Council’s July general meeting. This was an engaging, although long and complex, conversation to really distill what I will present to you later in this meeting as a first read of our FY23 strategic initiatives.

One of the greatest outcomes of the Executive Committee retreat, however, was a discussion about benchmarking and measuring our strategic initiatives. How can we show that we are making progress? What defines success? This is a conversation that merits a thoughtful approach; however, I also believe that understanding what and how to measure needs to happen relatively quickly as our strategic initiatives should be adopted after a second read in September. I plan to have benchmarking as an item for discussion in our August Executive Committee meeting, but Councilors, I’m going to task you with something first: Have conversations with your committee chairs about measuring the work your committee does. As we work through the process of refining and adopting our strategic initiatives for the year, think about this through the lens of YOUR committee. What can the Peer Advocacy Committee do to move the needle on our strategic initiatives? What about the Policies and Procedures Committee? What about everyone else? How are you engaging your constituents to see that the needle is moving the correct way? How can you measure success? What we do in our general Council meetings is direct reflection of the work that happens in your committees and the feedback we get from our constituents.
Later today, Peer Advocacy Committee Chair Jacob Larsen will share some results of the WorkFlex satisfaction survey Professional and Scientific Council administered in April. I share this now because this has been a massive undertaking, and as members of the Executive Committee are finalizing the report and recommendations for UHR, I want to recognize that the execution of this report is a direct result of constituent feedback. Our constituents highlighted a need, a place for Council to advocate on their behalf.

Thank you, Councilors, for the work you’ve been doing and the work you’ll continue to do. For any of our constituents who may be at our meeting today or reading this report later, please do not ever hesitate to reach out to your elected Councilor(s). We are here to help.

Ad Hoc Peer Expert Community (Sara Hayden Parris, Chair)

Description:

How can staff connect with each other to find answers to common questions, lean on each other for support, find others who do similar things on campus?

- Starting a new job on campus can feel lonely, especially if the work you do is very different from what your department does.
- Example: There are only a handful of auxiliary/fee-for-service units on campus, and our budgets and financials are pretty different from legislative-funded units.

How do we find each other and share ideas?

- Enter the Peer Expert Community and its Ad-Hoc Committee:
  - Sara Hayden Parris, Chair
  - Sarah Larkin
  - Nicole Scott
  - Karin Lawton-Dunn

The Community will be based in Microsoft Teams since it is a tool already used by a majority of staff on campus.

Timeline:
• Today: All Councilors have been given access to the Peer Expert Community.
• Go-Live for all P&S Staff: September 6 What the Committee Needs From YOU
• Check out the Peer Expert Community Team in Teams
• Add some channels that interest you
• Create a post or reply in a thread. Committee members have already started a few.
• When we launch on September 6, we want at least a few meaningful threads with lots of engagement to be out there for staff to interact with—not a blank slate.
• Feedback! Let us know what’s working and what’s not.
• Feedback can be submitted to pandspec@iastate.edu

Please note: New developments have altered the Peer Expert Community implementation plan.

   Second Reading of FY23 Motion on Tuition Reimbursement (Erin Gibson)

   Council Motion: To request that University Human Resources no longer limit the use of the Employee Tuition Assistance Program to only Iowa State University (ISU) courses. That the Program be reinstated to the requirements that were in use prior to June 2020.

   Submitted by: Compensation and Benefits Committee

   Date: July 7, 2022

   Whereas: The Compensation and Benefits Committee is responsible for assessing and recommending action on issues with staff benefits, as well as providing counsel on issues such as compensation concerns.

   Whereas: The Tuition Reimbursement Program (TRP) supports the professional development efforts of merit and professional and scientific employees on non-temporary appointments of at least twenty (20) hours per week. Staff must work at the university for one (1) year before they can apply to participate in the program. Whereas: In June 2020, University senior leaders made the decision to limit tuition reimbursement for employees to only ISU courses as a budget-cutting measure in light of reduced state and tuition income. This change was put into effect for the fall 2020 semester. No other changes were made to the program.
Whereas: Constituents have contacted the Compensation and Benefits Committee seeking assistance on reversing the 2020 change so that they can pursue professional development in areas where ISU does not provide educational programs that meet their needs.

It is moved: That the Professional and Scientific Council recommends that Iowa State University reverse the change that was made June 2020 to the Tuition Reimbursement Program to better meet the professional development needs of staff, encourage lifelong learning, and increase employee retention.

Work flex (Jacob Larson)

2022 Professional and Scientific WorkFlex Employee Satisfaction Survey
Findings from qualitative data

Questions:

- How satisfied are you with the amount of WFH time you will get? (Please indicate why, in the text box next to your chosen answer)
- If you could change one thing about the WorkFlex program, what would it be?
- Do you have any other opinions about the WorkFlex program that you'd like to share with the P&S Council?

Analysis:

- Five Executive committee members analyzed responses
  (John Hascall, Matthew Femrite, Jacob Larsen, Sara Parris, and Jamie Sass)
- Themes identified and coded into categories and subcategories
- Summaries written for categories
Findings:

Opinions, suggestions, and criticisms:
• Issues with implementation /consistency
• Supervisors and units
• UHR
• Amount of WFH
• Classification
• Fairness and equity
• Efficiency and productivity
• Flexibility
• Retention

Opinions, suggestions and criticisms:
• More discretion for supervisors in deciding WFH eligibility
• Implementation is too rigid, inflexible, arbitrary, and absurd
• Classification (student-facing or not) must be more individualized and less guided by blanket policies
• Many concerns about WFH limits imposed by different college admins, with LAS specifically mentioned
• Deans seen as out of touch with individual position responsibilities
• 36% (287) of respondents want more WFH time
• Staff want to be trusted more and given more agency in their WFH decisions
• UHR must provide better training, guidance, and help ensure fairness and equity while preserving WorkFlex flexibility for individual employees

Benefits:

Efficiency and Productively
• Employees feel more productive
• Work is more effective with fewer distractions at home
• Staff save time and money by not having to commute (as much)
• An important benefit that all staff should be able to enjoy to one extent or another

Flexibility:
• 16% (131) respondents commented on flexibly
• Positive - appreciate UHR/supervisor efforts
• Negative - more needed more opportunities for WFH -
• Short term or more informal arrangements
Retention:

- 10% (78) of respondents commented on the important of WorkFlex for retention
- Hybrid or fully remote work is necessary to retain employees, especially ‘key’ or ‘valuable’ ones. WorkFlex is needed to compensate for lower salaries
- Remote work results in cost savings, better work-life balance, and improved mental health for employees
- WorkFlex opportunities need to be expanded to support retention and diversity

Fairness and Equity

- Implementation and limits are different between colleges for similar positions
- Differences due to unit and/or manager/appointment authority preferences and/or biases
- Lack of buy-in from supervisor and/or college leadership, too many restrictions
- Lack of training and guidance from UHR to supervisors
- Opportunities for WorkFlex participation must be equitable for all
- Feeling that WorkFlex has not been implemented as intended by UHR

Questions or comments:

- Question: What are the next steps? Answer: Likely will turn into a motion
- Question: This is a program? Answer: Correct.
- Comments: Data collection will be refined for readability
- Comment: Not everyone is entitled to a benefit. We do not want this to be a policy because then it would need to be equitable for everyone.
- Comment: Employees interviewing for new position. Some will specifically not to apply in unit or department because work flex not allowed.
